June President's Message

Friends,

We just had what was probably the shortest and least contentious Annual Meeting that I can recall. Nobody shouted. Nobody stormed out. Nobody threatened to resign. The votes were mostly unanimous. Not like the “bad old days.” That’s not necessarily a good thing. We passed a deficit budget and nobody objected. The relative placidity could be seen to reflect a fatalism, a feeling of “we can’t do anything about this.” The placidity also reflects the small number of people present. There was a quorum, but that’s not a lot of people. We need to be involved and we need to cultivate the attitude that “we can do something about this!”

As I look back at the past year, I see things we can be proud of. Our wheelchair lift is installed and functioning, so that people with wheelchairs and walkers can more comfortably enter our building. (We could still use some help paying for it, hint, hint.) The chronic water leakage in the kitchen ceiling has been finally fixed, as have some problems with our roof. Our building is generally in good shape.

The Rabbi has been an asset to our services. His sermons are thought provoking and his davening is wonderful to listen to. The core of people who keep our services going are doing well, too. Some of our recent bnai mitzvah are continuing to be active in leading services and reading Torah or Haftorah. We old fogeys are still active too. If you haven’t been to services in a while, come see how we’re doing.

The upcoming year will see two bnai mitzvah: Jacob Schaffer in August and Noah Honickman in September. I hope we will see other happy events in the coming months. I’m looking forward to seeing you in shul.

B’shalom

First Fruits

Throughout the Festival of Shavuot, which we recently celebrated, a passage in the Mishnah was buzzing in my head. I had wanted to share it, but there was not the opportunity.

In ancient times the Shavuot was also known as Hag ha-Bikkurim, the Festival of First Fruits, as laid out in Exodus 23:19 and Deuteronomy 26:1–11. The latter reads,

When you come into the Land... You shall take of the first of all the fruit of the ground... and shall put it in a basket... and shall come to the priests... who will take your basket... and you shall declare... A wandering Aramean was my father, and he went down to Egypt... and the Egyptians oppressed us... And the Eternal heard our voice... And brought us out of Egypt... and brought us to a land flowing with milk and honey... And behold, I have brought of the first fruit of the land... And you shall rejoice in all the good that the Eternal has given you.

Part of the italicized passage we recite at the Passover Seder.

In a special tractate of the Mishnah, known as Bikkurim, we learn how the First Fruits ceremony was conducted. We learn that originally all who knew how to recite the Deuteronomy passage did so from memory, but those who did not know the passage or had forgotten it, were prompted in the declaration by the priests (the priest would recite the words first, and the donor would repeat after him).

Just try to imagine life in ancient Israel. Ordinary people did not have “books” at home. Scrolls containing books of the Bible were kept in the synagogue, the House of Study. Probably only rich persons might have had personal scrolls at home. Even if a person had memorized the passage at the local synagogue, what if he (or she?) forgot it on the way to Jerusalem? How was such a person to look up the passage again? The Mishnah (Bikkurim 3:7) tells us that people, rather than shaming themselves when they came to donate their First Fruits at the Temple before the priest, would stay away! They simply didn't show up! They did not want to suffer embarrassment in public and made to feel bad and inferior to the scholars who spent many hours in the House of Study, or the rich people who might have had personal copies of the books of the Bible.

A way out of this situation was found. The rabbis decided that in future, everyone would be prompted by the priest, whether they knew the passage or not. No one was to suffer embarrassment or shame.

I find this rule of the Mishnah very moving. It overflows with great compassion and profound sensitivity. It is true religion in action. This, too, is Torah!
