July President's Message

Friends,

The month of July looks like it should be pretty quiet. There are no major religious observances coming up until Tish B'Av in August. In the greater Jewish community it's time for the JCC Ames Amzalak Rochester Jewish Film Festival. But, our shul doesn't have anything major planned. July is a time when many people go away on vacation, including a number of our regular attendees. This will make getting minyans more difficult on Shabbat mornings. If you don't come regularly, July is a good time to put in an appearance. If you are concerned about that strange hot round thing that we are starting to see in the sky (i.e. the sun), our shul is cool and air conditioned. If you are worried that the shul will be too hot (or too cold) you can choose the side that matches your temperature preference! Your presence will be appreciated. One person CAN make a difference.

Starting in August there will be more things happening. Our collaborative events with Temple Beth Am continue. In addition, collaborations with other synagogues will be increasing. The ritual committee of Temple Beth David has suggested that we resume some of our collaborations with them that had been suspended last year while they explored a deeper partnership with Beth El. We should see the beginning of this with their participation in a joint Tisha B'Av service in August. I look forward to their participation in Selichot and Sukkot programs as we move into September and October.

Outside of our own little world, the Rochester Area Synagogue Presidents' Council, has hired a consultant, Rabbi Louis Feldstein, to facilitate collaborative projects among most of the synagogues in Rochester, including most of the Reform, Conservative, and Orthodox congregations. The object of these collaborations will be to increase Jewish engagement in Rochester. This will include both getting people to participate in our community who haven't participated before and in enabling people who do participate to do so in a deeper and more meaningful way. Our board members will be participating in workshops about collaboration starting in the Fall.

Have a nice, relaxing, July. It looks like the beginning of an exciting year.

B'shalom.

Leon Metlay

It's time to get out of the summer heat and join us for Shabbat services at BHBI,
