February President's Message

Friends,

Last month, I was so involved with the story of Asenath Barzani that I forgot a very important item. We owe a big “thank you” to the Farash Foundation. At the end of 2014 they gave us a very generous donation. Most of the money has been put aside for the building fund. One suggestion that the Board is considering for use of part of the money is updating the prayer books that we use. We could get some copies of the “Etz Chaim” bible, which has a more up to date translation and commentary than the Hertz bibles we currently use. Another possibility is the new Conservative Mahzor Lev Shalem for the High Holy Days. It has a commentary along with the text. There is a copy at the shul if you'd like to take a look at it. A Siddur Lev Shalem for Shabbat is going to be coming out this year as well. I'm aware that many of you are deeply devoted to the Silverman Siddur and Mahzor that we have used for so many years. I love them too. But many people find the old fashioned language off-putting. I'm sure that if we acquire new books, we will find a way for anyone who prefers to use the old books to continue to do so.

We had a very informative discussion at the Turkish Cultural Center this month. The format was different than we have used in the past. Instead of a panel of “experts” who make presentations with limited time for people to ask questions, all of the participants were divided into groups sitting around tables. These groups discussed a series of questions and then reported back to the others. There were lively discussions and everyone had a chance to be heard. I think we'll be using this format again in the future.

Purim is coming during the first week of March. We'll be celebrating jointly with Temple Beth Am. In this bulletin you'll find a form to send Shalach Manot to your friends. This is a fun fundraiser. This year, Andrea Paprocki is taking over as the chief hamentashen baker. If you'd like to help out with the project, contact Andrea.

Temple Beth Am has also invited us to the Shabbat Across America dinner which will be on March 13th. There is a registration form for that in the bulletin too.

After Purim, it's a month until Passover. Time to start planning your house cleaning.

As you try to stay warm this winter, remember that our services are a warm place to be on Shabbat mornings. I'm looking forward to seeing you in shul.

Leon Metlay

Save the Dates!

TU B'SHEVAT

This year, Tu b'Shevat, the New Year of the Trees, falls on Wednesday, February 4th. It marks the time when the earliest blossoming trees begin to bud in Israel. Traditionally, we partake of fruits, particularly those species of fruits that are praised in the Torah to celebrate Tu b'Shevat. These include figs, pomegranates, dates and carobs.
